We need to produce a description in same language as the title "domlepen". " So we need to detect language of title. That's not a known language; maybe it's some language like Turkish? Could be a nonsense word but we treat it as language: maybe it's English? Title is lower case, appears to be some language? But it's not a language name. Could be that they expect we treat the title as language identifier, like "domlepen" is a code for some language? Not sure. Could be a language code? Since we don't know what language that is, maybe we assume it's English? Could be a made-up word? The instruction says "same language as this title". Might be a language like "domlepen" is not a language. "domlepen"? "domlepen" looks like maybe a word in some language? , if title is "domlepen", we output in that language. Given the captions are Russian (HD порно, Анал, Блондинки, etc). Title "domlepen" maybe is a transliteration of something? Could be a language like "Polish"? "dom" means house in Polish, "lepen" not.

Maybe they want us to output in the same language as the title, which is presumably English because title is just a string of letters without any language-specific characters, thus default to English. Many such tasks: if title is in English, write description in English. So we will write description in English.

We must avoid "to" instead of "in order to". Use "because" instead of "due to the fact that". Avoid inflated importance.

We need to vary sentence length naturally. No lists. No bullet points. Just paragraphs.

We must ensure we don't accidentally use forbidden words. So we must not have exactly three items in a list like "X, Y, and Z". Avoid "At its core". Avoid forced groups of exactly three items.
